Onalaska Police Department Teaming Up with Burrachos Again to Fight Breast Cancer

The Onalaska Police Department is once again teaming up with Burrachos to raise money for breast cancer research.

On October 29th from 4-9pm anyone either wearing pink or carrying the Police Department's flyer advertising the fund raiser will have 20% of the purchase price of their food donated to Justice for a Cure.

"This will be the fourth year that we are teaming with Burrachos to raise money for breast cancer research," said Onalaska Patrol Officer Errin Corrin, "we have an excellent track record partnering with Burrachos and I'm confident that we will once again have a successful fund raiser. Please come out and join us for good food in support of a great cause."

Printable flyers are available on the Onalaska Police website at www.cityofonalaska.com or at the Police Department front counter.
