5th Annual "Cops Gone Wild"

Buffalo Wild Wings in Onalaska will be hosting the 5th annual Cops Gone Wild fund raiser for Special Olympics on Friday January 23rd. The event runs from noon until 8:00 p.m. During that time a percentage of the profits from meals sold will be donated to Special Olympics.

"We look forward to this event every year," said Onalaska Investigator Peter Jakowski, "it is especially heartwarming to see the community turn out to support the special athletes. Special Olympics builds character and self-confidence, it builds better citizens and proceeds from this event help us keep the program running."

Investigator Jakowski and his wife Patti have a long history with Special Olympics.

"Our Chief actively encourages community involvement," said Jakowski, "and I can't think of a better cause. Working with these young people is truly inspiring."

Cops Gone Wild features a wing eating contest that begins sharply at 5:00 p.m. There are three categories of contestants, Chief and Sheriffs, Officers and Athletes and participants are still being sought. Any interested contestants are advised to contact Investigator Jakowski at (608) 781-9550. For additional information please see the event flyer on the Onalaska Police Department website under Upcoming Events.

"We hope to see a big turn out on Friday," said Jakowski, "come and cheer our Chief along to victory in the wing eating contest."
